Cardboard

In this USB stick the memory chip is inserted in a corrugated cardboard with a thickness of just over half a centimetre. The material is the same as that usually used for packaging and consists of several surfaces of flat paper alternating with corrugated paper, linked together by natural adhesives. The result is a product that preserves the functionality of the USB memory intact but with a minimum environmental impact for the production of the body. It can be customised on both sides by screen printing and four-colour process.
